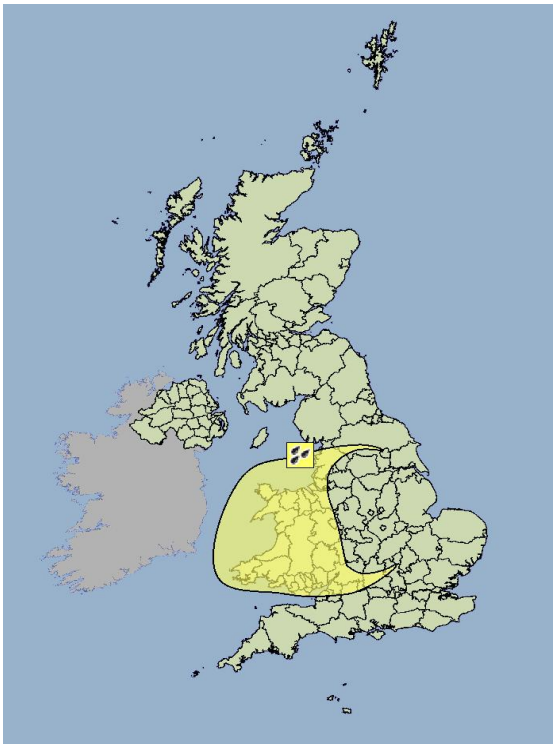
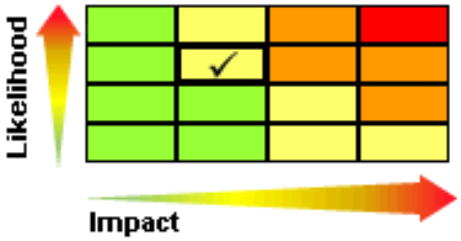
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
Scattered showers or outbreaks of rain are expected to run northwards across Wales and western parts of England from Saturday morning onwards. There will also be some brighter spells and hazy sunshine and it is possible that some places here may escape the showers or rain and remain dry.

Uncertainty in the development of these showers and rain is higher than average and some areas may see only small amounts of rain. Showers within this warning area are not expected to be as intense as those that may develop in the other warning area further east on Saturday covering parts of the Midlands and southern Pennines.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Rain

Valid from 06:00 on Sat, 07th May 2016 until 23:00 on Sat, 07th May 2016

Scattered showers or outbreaks of rain are expected to spread north during Saturday morning, then lasting into the evening. Between the showers and rain some brighter spells with hazy sunshine are expected.

These showers may be heavy with the potential for lightning and small hail. Please be aware of the potential for localised disruption to travel and outdoor activities.
